OFFICIAL UNIVERSITY LOGOS

The Saint Martin’s Logo is constructed of two elements: The diamond icon and logotype. There are two layouts, the primary being horizontal and the secondary vertical.

When creating a document the primary logo must always be the first logo that is seen. If the logo needs to be repeated in a piece, the secondary logo may be used if necessary.

NOTE: The secondary logo can be used as the primary logo if space and layout issues occur.

There is also the option of using the reversed logotype version. In those instances the gray diamond should be used on the SMU red background and the SMU red diamond on gray or black backgrounds.

A reversed version (white logo) is also available for one color print jobs. This version may also be used in third party applications, where the logo needs to be placed over a different color or photo. Reach out to the Office of Marketing and Communications for these specific logos.

Always defer to the University’s creative team in the Office of Marketing and Communications for any branding and style questions. marcom@stmartin.edu.

FONTS

HEADER AND SUBHEAD FONT
Knockout 49 or Knockout 48 is to be used on headlines and subheads. Using the official University red is a nice way to call out the header as well. The Knockout font should not be used in large blocks of text unless on a dark background. In that case Knockout font can be used but should be reversed out in white.

Headlines and subheads can be set in either all caps or sentence case.

BODY TEXT
Mercury should be used for body copy in your publication. Use Mercury for blocks of copy when those areas are longer than one or two sentences.
